A weekly publication for Gallaudet staff and faculty

June 4, 1984

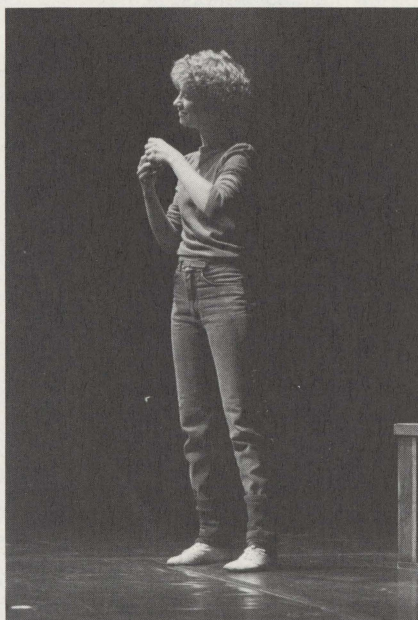

Vol. 14 No. 32

Gallaudet Dancer Sue Gill talks with Senator Edward Kennedy (D-MA) and Jean Kennedy Smith, founder and national chairperson of the Very Special Arts Festivals, during the international luncheon/reception at the Organization of American States on May 23. Senator Kennedy spoke during the luncheon, prior to which the Gallaudet Dancers performed.

Cognition symposium gets under way

The International Symposium on Cognition, Education and Deafness, scheduled for this week on campus, will feature a variety of scholarly and practice-oriented presentations on topics related to improving the cognitive performance of hearing impaired students of all ages. Approximately 175 persons from nine countries will attend the symposium June 5-8.

Edward Corbett, director of the National Academy, will address the opening plenary session, speaking on the topic, "Cognition, Education and Deafness: Meeting the Challenge."

Theme sessions will then be held on a variety of topics, including cognitive styles and problem solving, cognition and language development, measurement of cognition potential in hearing impaired learners, cognitive strategies and processes, reading and reading methods, growth and development of the hearing impaired learner and effects of cognitive intervention programs.

The final plenary session will include a synthesis of all symposium sessions entitled, "Cognition, Education and Deafness: Where Do We Proceed from Here?" prepared by Irving Sigel of Educational Testing Service, a noted authority on cognition.

A publication which will include key issues and implications raised by all symposium presentations will be prepared and available for purchase through Gallaudet Press later this year. For more information, leave a message for David Martin at x5400 (voice and TDD).

Campus hosts Festival participants

The last senior had barely vacated Gallaudet's dorms late last month when 750 new inhabitants arrived on the scene. Buses, buses and more buses pulled onto campus, each one filled with youngsters participating in the National Very Special Arts Festival, held in Washington, D.C. from May 23 through 26.

Blind children, deaf children, mentally retarded children and children with mobility impairments came from throughout the United States to attend the event, sponsored by the National Committee, Arts with the Handicapped. By Wednesday afternoon, they seemed to be everywhere, learning about each other and about Gallaudet.

Raychelle Harris and Brian Morris, KDES intermediate students chosen to represent the District of Columbia at the Festival, were among the participants to stay in Gallaudet dorms during the Festival.

While the young participants were enjoying trips to the White House, breakfast with Congress and a performance-packed day at the Kennedy Center, a host of Gallaudet people worked—often long hours—to keep things running smoothly.

Bonnie Mann of Business Services and Joan Ferguson of Public Relations coordinated the overall campus involvement while Joan Lee, wife of Gallaudet President Jerry C. Lee, served as hostess for Gallaudet's guests and represented Gallaudet at special events.

Long before country singing star Ronnie Milsap officially opened the Festival Wednesday night, Floyd Holt and Ed Glenn of the Department of Safety and Security had devised intricate security procedures. Mike Southers and Telecommunications Services had arranged for the temporary installation of a bank of extra phone lines, which were continuously in use during Festival week.

Two nights before the Festival, Edward Adegbite and his staff in Custodial Services saw the clock strike midnight as they eliminated the remnants of graduation from around campus.

Marcia Melamed and her staff at the Student Health Center stood ready as soon as participants arrived. The Center stayed open around-the-clock to handle any medical emergencies.

Peter Goodman and Marty Willigan managed the details of coordinating facilities, such as making sure buildings were accessible to wheelchairs and protecting the Field House's wooden floor from scratches and scrapes during

Day care program pre-registration set

Pre-registration is now being taken for the campus day care program, which will begin operation in September if enough children are enrolled.

Faculty, staff and students can register their children between the ages of 2 and 6 in the program. Forty children will be accepted into the program on a full-time basis when it first opens, with 80 children eventually to take part. Children will be accepted on a first-come basis by age group.

All registration forms should be forwarded to LaVarne Hines at the Edward Miner Gallaudet Building, Room 202. The deadline is June 15. For more information, contact Hines at x5075.

Raychelle Harris, who, along with fellow KDES student Brian Morris, represented the District of Columbia at the Arts Festival, signs the song "Out Here on My Own" from "Fame" at the Kennedy Center.

Calendar of Extension Events

The following extension programs are being planned throughout the United States. For more information about upcoming events, contact the campus sponsor or the Office of Extension Programs. If you plan to give any off-campus presentation, workshops or courses on behalf of Gallaudet, please contact Continuing Education at x5599.

Of note . . .

. . . The Intermediate Department of KDES will present the play, "Heidi" Wednesday, June 6 from 10 to 11 a.m. and again on Thursday, June 7 at 7 p.m.

The play will be held in the Kendall auditorium and the campus community is invited to attend.

. . . The Mid-Atlantic Chapter of the American Society of Group Psychotherapy and Psychodrama (ASGPP) will sponsor its first annual psychodrama conference at Gallaudet June 8-10.

The conference will feature all-day, half-day and two-hour training sessions aimed at acquainting the novice and experienced practitioner to action methods and psychodrama techniques.

. . . KDES will host its annual awards day program Wednesday, June 13 at 9:30 a.m. in the KDES gym.

A crowd gathers at the Kennedy Center for a National Very Special Arts Festival performance. Gallaudet not only hosted more than 700 participants in the Festival but was represented at the Festival itself, which was held in Washington, D.C. from May 23 through 26.

Arts Festival

Thursday night's dinner-dance for the Festival participants.

Loraine DiPietro and the Visitor's Center staff planned tours of Gallaudet for international visitors. Jeffrey Grandel and the Theatre Department lent a hand to performances, while Sandy Maley and a crew from the Television Center captured the events on film.

Tim McCarty and his MSSD students staged a special performance of "Godspell" to a full house of very special artists on Friday night.

Marsha Miceli, Sharon Hayes and the College residence staff took care of dormitory arrangements for the 750 youngsters. Marte Shadis and ARA Food Services saw that all the children were fed.

The Very Special Arts Festival ended on a Gallaudet note, too, with a special address from Joan Lee.
